

Leaham Dec. 14. 1841.

My Dear Friend:

As a new Vol. of the Non-Resistant is about to commence I wish to make arrangements beforehand for its editorial management. You know that soon how or other the business of writing for it has mainly fallen to my share for the last three years & I now demand some help. And I propose doing it in this wise. I will provide editorial for twelve numbers - i.e. for one half; provided, W. L. Garrison, M. W. Chapman, W. P. Felt, C. Weston, A. W. Weston & L. R. Whipple to furnish each editorial for two numbers (from three to four columns each number) - having due notice of their turn. I cannot think this an unreasonable demand. I find that the friends of the paper demand a greater variety of editorial - & moreover, writing for it is getting to be a dead bore to me. I shall be happy to hear your opinions on the subject - but I shall take silence to mean assent. If these friends do not feel interest enough in the paper to do thus well for it, I think that it had better stop at the end of this volume.

Truly & affectionately

your friend
